Dear Dr. Henney,

I am writing to you with two concerns I have. ① I would like the FDA to support the Center for Science in the Public Interest (CSPI) petition against sub-therapeutic uses of antibiotics in live stock. I am concerned that antibiotics are being overused and misused with resistant bacteria on the increase. ② I want the FDA to require labeling of all food products that contain genetically engineered ingredients. Genetically engineered food needs more thorough testing by the federal government. I don't want these products on my dinner table. Labelling food would give consumers a choice.

Sincerely,

Barbara and Laura A. Danna
